Programme Project Report (PPR)

PPR ID : GU/GUIDOL/PPR/05 (Total no. pages : 7)

Programme: Master of Arts in Political Science

1. Programme mission and objective:

The mission of the Programme to be launched is "to communicate the knowledge of Political Science as an academic discipline among diverse groups and to meet the demand of higher education in this field by reaching the unreached."

Objectives of the Programme:

- To apply the knowledge of Political Science to serve the needs and problems of the society, particularly of the North East India
- To develop new knowledge in the field of Political Science through scholastic inquiry
- To prepare the learners for active citizenship and informed participation in a complex society
- To enable the learners to think about politics and through this, to develop their conceptual and verbal skills
- To foster critical independent thinking about political and public life in the present context
- To generate competent and well-educated man-power for the teaching profession, administration as well as manning positions of research associates in public/private sector academic institutions.

2. Relevance of the programme with HEI's mission and goals:

Gauhati University was established in 1948 with a mission to revitalize educational leadership, to set the standard for the production and dissemination of knowledge as well as to become an effective instrument of change in the society. With this aim in view, the department of Political Science was established in the year 1958 and is regarded as the pioneer of teaching and research in Political Science in the North-Eastern region. The department has produced over the years a large number of alumni who have made their mark in various fields of public life including higher education, administration, politics and social work. The vision of the department is to set up a symbiotic relationship and a vibrant network with institutions of higher learning and research, to achieve higher academic excellence and to strengthen its societal interface while anchoring firmly to the issues, needs and aspirations of the people of the North East.

In alignment with the aims and objective of the parent department, the M.A. Programme in Political Science to be offered through Gauhati University Institute of Distance and Open Learning (GUIDOL) aims to provide quality higher education in Political Science to those aspiring candidates who are deprived of higher education. Moreover, to keep the quality intact the curriculum and syllabus is designed at par with the conventional mode keeping in mind the specific needs and acceptability of the learners in the ODL mode.

3. Nature and target group of learners: Our target group includes-

- 1) Those deprived of admission in the parent department of regular mode due to limited intake capacity.
- 2) Those employed in various organizations who desire to pursue higher education as a passion or as a means for movement up the promotional ladder.
- 3) Drop outs primarily due to social, financial and economic compulsions as well as demographic factors.
- 4) Job seekers.

Gauhati University also has a provision in the ODL mode for lateral entry for those who had to discontinue the regular programme after successful completion of the first two semesters due to unavoidable reasons. Acceptability of the lateral entry provision is an indicator of parity of the courses in regular and distance mode. The curriculum is designed to enable learners to fulfill their aims and objectives in a manner they deem fit and proper. The curriculum is designed by a committee comprising of experts from the department of the HEI, external experts and teachers of GUIDOL, keeping in view the needs of the diverse class of learners.

4. Appropriateness of the programme to be conducted in the ODL mode for acquiring specific skills and competence- The M.A. programme in Political Science to be offered through ODL Mode will have certain learning outcomes. This programme will help the learners:

- To enhance and develop knowledge and understanding of the theoretical and practical foundations of Political Science as a subject.
- To accumulate the skills necessary to apply Political Science in appropriate job setting
- To understand the various emerging environmental issues, international affairs, state policies and conflicts both domestic and international
- To identify value conflicts in public issues

5. Instructional Design:

- a) Curriculum Design: The curriculum in CBCS mode is adopted from the parent department of HEI keeping the ODL at par with the regular mode.
- b) Detailed Syllabus: File containing detailed syllabus is attached as Enclosure-I
- c) Duration of the Program: Minimum 2 (two) years. However, the learners are required to complete the programme within 4 (four) years from the date of admission.
- d) Instructional Delivery Mechanism: The programme will be delivered in four (4) semesters having four (4) courses/papers in each semester. The learners will be provided with the printed/online SLM which covers almost all the contents in the syllabus. Counseling classes will be held in headquarter and various affiliated study centres. Telephonic Counseling and providing online learning resource will also be a part of instructional Delivery mechanism. In the current pandemic situation of COVID-19, more emphasis will be given to the teaching-learning through online mode. The progress of the learners will be evaluated by Internal Assessment and Term end/semester end examinations. SLM covering Syllabus is attached as Enclosure-III

Politics in India

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- This paper is a core paper that intends to introduce students to ideas, institutions and processes marking politics in India.
- The paper deals with the substantive concerns about the ideas on origin of Indian Democracy and the challenges it faced during different moments. It thus introduces the students not only to the grounding ideas and principles that underlie the Indian constitution but also goes beyond to explore as to how caste, class, gender and ethnicity have remained a perpetual concern in the studies in Indian Politics.
- It situates studies on social movements in Indian context and takes us to the recent writings on social movements, ideology and democracy in India.

COURSE OUTCOMES

- The paper remains useful for students who wish to explore the ideas on democracy, public institutions, political processes and its Indian context. It assumes importance for students if they wish to pursue research programme.
- The paper has utility for students preparing for UGC NET-JRF exams, SLET exams and other competitive exams like civil services.

Issues in World Politics

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- This paper is an optional paper that intends to introduce students to themes and issues in the study of world politics. It seeks to develop new insights among students on the diverse perspectives that have emerged to offer explanation and understanding on the crisis, change and continuity that marks the study of world politics.
- It seeks to study significant issues that have profound impact over world order like war, security, terrorism and nuclear non proliferation. An attempt is made to understand the emergence of issues that questions the sovereignty of state and have deep implications for the survival of nation state framework and thus it calls for rethinking of the idea of nation, state and sovereignty. Issues like migration, citizenship, ecological hazards, climate change and digital vulnerabilities shall be covered in this regard.

COURSE OUTCOMES

- The paper remains useful for students who wish to pursue research in the area of foreign policy and international relations.
- The paper has utility for students preparing for UGC NET-JRF exam and SLET exam.

Environment and Politics

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- This paper is an elective paper that intends to introduce students to themes and issues in the study of environment and politics. It seeks to develop new insights among students on the diverse perspectives that have emerged to offer explanation and understanding on the emergence of environmental discourse.
- It introduces students to the debates in western political theory on the relationship between environment, development, community, gender and the state. It explores both the possibilities as well as limitations that political theory holds for issues in environmentalism. It also explores the contestations that underlie the clash between environment and development.
- The paper seeks to understand the role of civil society and judiciary in bringing salience to the environmental concerns. Apart from this the paper deals with the environmental issues in North East India and challenges ahead.

COURSE OUTCOMES

- The paper remains useful for students in developing ideas on politics which is helpful in providing theoretical insights and perspectives to students if they wish to pursue research programme in area of gender studies, environment and development studies.
- The paper has utility for students preparing for UGC NET-JRF exam and SLET exam.

Development Studies

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- This paper is an elective paper that intends to introduce students to themes and issues in development studies. It seeks to develop new insights among students on the diverse perspectives that have emerged to offer explanation and understanding on the origin and consolidation of the idea of development and its relationship with state and democracy.
- It explores both the possibilities as well as limitations of 'development' as a conceptual tool and in this regard it explores various approaches to the study of development. It also explores the contestations that underlie the clash between the idea of development and environment. It introduces students to the debates in western political tradition on the relationship between gender, development and environment in a democracy and tries to situate it in the Indian context.
- It interrogates the idea of sustainable development apart from introducing students to the idea of human security and human development.

COURSE OUTCOMES

- The paper remains useful for students in developing ideas on politics which is helpful in providing theoretical insights and perspectives to students if they wish to pursue research programme in the area of development studies.
- The paper has utility for students preparing for UGC NET-JRF exam and SLET exam.
